Maiden ports. Gateways to the past and present.

Cunard sails to Alaska, with stops at scenic ports in the Pacific Northwest. Choose from 10 remarkable roundtrip Vancouver voyages that include a wealth of ports and memorable experiences. Witness the vastness of the landscapes in these icy northern reaches, where the sun barely sinks from sight in the late spring and throughout the summer. You will pass enormous turquoise-hued glaciers and sail into beautiful fjords that ancient glaciers have left behind.

Prince Rupert, British Columbia

Enter a Pacific Northwest community where past and present converge in the most meaningful ways. While Prince Rupert is one of Canada's fastest-growing ports, it is also a charming coastal community that cherishes its rich heritage and natural wonders. Captivating exhibits on native culture are on display at the Museum of Northern British Columbia, housed in a traditional longhouse, while intricately carved totem poles reveal artistry and tradition. See abundant wildlife in its natural habitats at the Khutzeymateen Grizzly Bear Sanctuary, where potential grizzly sightings are just as likely as views of soaring bald eagles — or the chance to see epic views of humpback whales and seals. Even a simple stroll through Prince Rupert showcases how the rhythms of the sea influence life here, with waterfront restaurants along Cow Bay boasting the freshest seafood and even better views.

Astoria, Oregon

Known as the oldest American settlement west of the Rockies, this former fur-trading post on the Oregon coast is steeped in history. American history buffs can step into the past at Lewis and Clark National Historical Park where they will find a replica of Fort Clatsop, and learn about the military defense of Fort Stevens. The Flavel House Museum, constructed in 1885, is one of the best-preserved landmarks of Queen Anne architecture, so reflective of the Victorian era. A culinary scene is booming in this quaint city that is filled with on-trend restaurants and a trail of craft breweries, while farther-flung excursions can transport you to the legendary Willamette Valley wine country or into the village of Tillamook for its famous ice cream and cheese factory. Should you wish to stay near the coast, explore the charming town of Seaside — and Cannon Beach, with its windswept shores and iconic view of Haystack Rock.

Seward, Alaska

In southeastern Alaska, as many as 40 glaciers are spawned from the massive Harding Icefield within Kenai Fjords National Park. When Cunard sails into Seward for the first time, guests will be delivered to the gateway to Alaska's smallest national park — which holds some of the state's biggest wonders. The port is just minutes away from this swath of protected territory that measures just over 1,000 square miles, easily explored by boat, on foot or during a scenic flight. Sail from Resurrection Bay and glide so close to tidewater glaciers that you can practically reach out and touch them. Wildlife abounds in its natural habitats with puffins perched on cliff rocks, harbor seals and Steller sea lions hauled out on boulders and ice floes, and resident orcas in the waters.

Kushiro, Japan

On the eastern side of Hokkaido, Japan's second-largest island, Kushiro, is a populous city that serves as the perfect jumping-off point to see some of nature's most incredible displays. Kushiro Marshland National Park is home to the tancho, the red-crowned crane that has long been a treasured symbol of Japanese culture. Spot these rare birds — once believed to be extinct — enjoying their habitat as they feed from the fertile wetlands. Three crater lakes fill the landscape in nearby Akan National Park, a beautiful site where you can wander through lovely mountain trails and see steaming vents emerging from the active Izoan volcano. At Lake Akan, you may also see a most unusual sight: marimo, bright green balls of algae that can grow to the size of soccer balls — so unique that they have been designated a National Special Natural Monument. In the city of Kushiro itself, Fisherman's Wharf is a must-stop for foodies with its market stalls displaying the freshest seafood plucked straight from the sea. Here, Katte Don — rice topped with fresh sashimi — is a local delicacy.

Rare points of view.

Voyages from Vancouver aboard Queen Elizabeth.

Cunard offers roundtrip voyages from Vancouver, giving you more time to explore the beauty of Alaska. Sailing the Inside Passage, you will soak up the majestic and pristine drama of Glacier Bay, Hubbard Glacier, Tracy Arm Fjord or College Fjord. Learn how the Klondike Gold Rush transformed Alaska and meet First Nations communities where traditions endure. On select voyages, Cunard’s calls to Prince Rupert showcase British Columbia’s coastal charm, Astoria, Oregon, stands close to where the Columbia River meets the sea, and a visit to Seward puts you at the doorstep of Kenai Fjords National Park.
